

Lisa Hearn's

BIO

Lisa Hearn's is an acclaimed jazz and blues musician who has performed at legendary venues and festivals in Boston, New York City, and throughout New England. She can be seen in clubs in Greenwich Village, Staten Island, Brooklyn, and the New York tri-state area. Hearn's leads several performance groups, including a jazz group, a small acoustic group and an electric blues band. These groups feature bassist Kelly Friesen, pianist Joe Tranchina, drummer Taro Okamoto, and guitarist Chris Carter.

The daughter of two music professors, Hearn's grew up in Massachusetts and is a graduate of the prestigious Berklee College of Music in Boston. She formed and led her own group, playing in New York City for several years and traveling throughout New England, performing together until 2001. She returned to New York City in September 2001 to continue her singing career, and then assumed the role of Berklee's New York Alumni Chapter President. In March, 2006, she accepted an appointment as Trustee on Berklee's Board of Trustees. She is a member of Manhattan Association of Cabaret, and has several professional recordings including the album "Give Yourself Freely" for which she wrote eight of the ten blues and jazz tracks. She is an accomplished composer, singer, pianist, and also plays guitar.

Bringing a contemporary edge to jazz and blues classics, Hearn's is known for her range and versatility. Critics have touted her vocals as "undeniably ghost-like - hers is a voice from the past with a respect for the establishment, yet she still finds a way to make it ballsy, fresh and distinct."
